

REPORT FROM THE INTERNATIONAL OFFICE – 2025 ACTIVITIES

"The mission of IPPS, with a focus on the global community of those involved in horticultural plant production, is to share knowledge, information, and skills; to provide guidance and support for lifelong career achievements; to increase recognition of the profession; and to maximize the integration of research, education, and horticultural knowledge."

In Two-Thousand Twenty-Five, IPPS continued work in strengthening the global community of plant production professionals while expanding opportunities to exchange horticultural knowledge. A major milestone during the year was the continued transition from the International Plant Propagators' Society to the International Plant Production Society, reflecting the broader scope of plant production while still honoring the Society's strong propagation heritage.

The organization also launched a newly redesigned international website, improving access to more than 70 years of Proceedings, educational resources, and regional information for members worldwide. The site was developed to be more user-friendly for both regional secretaries and members, allowing greater customization within regional pages that was not previously possible. Additional enhancements are planned for 2026 to further improve functionality; however, the site is already receiving positive feedback for its ease of use, integrated event ticketing, and expanded capabilities.

Membership saw a slight decline in 2025, in part due to a comprehensive audit of member records conducted prior to migrating data to the new website. This process ensured greater accuracy and consistency within the membership database moving forward.

Encouragingly, the number of articles published in the Proceedings has returned to levels comparable to those seen prior to the Covid-19 pandemic. During the pandemic years, presentations and resulting papers declined significantly. The return to typical submission levels strengthens the core IPPS principle of "seeking and sharing" knowledge within the industry.

Across its seven regions, IPPS hosted conferences, tours, and educational programs that brought together growers, researchers, educators, and allied industry professionals to exchange practical knowledge and innovations in plant production. The society also continued to support students and early-career professionals through scholarships, exchange programs, and awards, while strengthening partnerships with industry sponsors and horticultural organizations. Through these initiatives, IPPS further advanced its mission to foster collaboration and knowledge sharing through the "seek and share" motto across the global horticulture community.

The 2025 International Tour was hosted by New Zealand and provided attendees with an exceptional experience featuring stunning landscapes, outstanding nurseries and garden centers, and meaningful professional connections. The International Board extends its sincere appreciation to everyone involved in planning and organizing this remarkable tour and hopes everyone who attended had an enjoyable and memorable experience.

IPPS is grateful for the continued support of all IPPS sponsors, including our 2025 International Sponsors: Ball Horticulture, Bailey Nurseries, Harrell's, RAYN Growing Systems, and Spring Meadow Nurseries, and our North American Sponsor, ICL. Their generous contributions play an important role in sustaining the organization and keeping costs reasonable for members. Along with the dedication of many volunteers, this support enables IPPS to carry out its "seek and share" mission while operating efficiently and effectively.

As we reflect on the successes of the past year, IPPS remains committed to fostering growth, collaboration, and excellence in serving the global horticulture community. The Society looks ahead to continued innovation, a strong and engaged membership, and ongoing leadership within the plant production industry.

MEMBERSHIP

As of June 1, 2025, total paid membership declined significantly by 172 members, while student memberships dropped by 68. Part of this decline is due to full membership audits when transferring members to the new website.
